Most of the characters in Golden Persona 4 do not have a complex process to start social bonds. You can simply go through the plot and get a few grades automatically while making sure to visit them on a regular basis during the school year. It is fairly easy to maximize the cast starting from Yusuke, Shi, and Yoko without a lot of overtime. However, there are some exceptions to this rule. Naoto Shirogen happens to be one of those. A mysterious detective who is much better than her older peers, adding her late to the party during the Golden Story means you won't make progress in her social bond earlier during the campaign. I didn't meet Naoto until about 40 hours ago but then I didn't discover her social connection to 10 others, thank God, and this is a guide to stop you from wasting precious time and eventually getting Naoto's character unlocked in time for the final battle. You just have to be diligent as you don't give much leeway. Via: Atlas as mentioned above, Naoto does not join the party for nearly two-thirds of the 4 rd Persona's golden runtime. She will join you near the end of the puzzle, but she becomes a vital asset to the team as she is probably the best party member in the game. Due to her late arrival, she will not be able to start her social engagement until October 21st. Like Kanji, there are some preconditions for starting the process. You'll need to know Max and the maximum courage statistics, so work on those before joining Naoto. After getting both (and arriving in late October), you'll find a man in black in the northern shopping area. Answer his question with the first option, then go find Naoto at school. You'll be on the first floor towards the student council room once you do that, you'll simply need to spend some time with her practically every day to her maximum before the final battle. You will have until November 27 thon this social link - much like Kanji, so you won't want to mess around. Having a character from Arkana Fortune in your inventory will greatly help, as your social stats will max.
